

BORDERLESS

The spread of covid-19 has caused the distance of people in society to change all the time. The architecture therefore needs to be changed in accordance with the context.

"BORDERLESS" creates boundaries and breaking boundaries at the same time, through a pile of sand that is extremely flexible, it can easily blends its shape to the context anytime. The internal and external spaces are always adapted to how people use them. The outer walls help create clearer boundaries, but it is still flexible to use in various situations, with sliding walls that can adjust the layout of the space at any time.

When the distance between people decreases, architecture will lessen its role to allow people to interact with each other, but as the distance between people increases, architecture will also play a larger role.

ARCHITECTURE IS RELATED TO SOCIAL DISTANCE
